Designation of Spouse (definition on the reverse side of this form)

In accordance with the applicable pension benefits legislation and the terms of the plan, your spouse may be entitled to certain benefits following your death, regardless of any other beneficiary you have named. This entitlement can only be waived through the signing of a prescribed provincial waiver form. Benefits not payable to your spouse will be paid to your beneficiary.

☐ I have a spouse, as defined by the applicable legislation.

Definition of Spouse Under Pension Benefits Legislation

British Columbia

The Pension Benefits Standards Act of British Columbia defines a "spouse" as, in relation to another person,

(a) a person who at the relevant time was married to that other person and not living separate and apart from that other person for the 2 year period immediately preceding the relevant time, or

(b) if paragraph (a) does not apply,

(i) a person who at the relevant time lived with that other person as husband and wife for the 2 year period immediately preceding the relevant time, or

(ii) a person of the same gender who at the relevant time lived in a marriage-like relationship with that other person for the 2 year period immediately preceding the relevant time
